The Botanic Garden Boutique

Home to a range of carefully curated, bespoke, botanically-inspired products, including the Botanic Garden's Metaphysic perfume and Physic Gin. You can browse and buy in person at the Garden, or click and collect online.

Why not visit Harcourt Arboretum?

Set within historic Picturesque landscape, Harcourt Arboretum comprises over 130 acres containing some of the world's most endangered trees. Explore stunning wildflower meadows or stand under some of the oldest giant redwoods in the UK. Join us for family activities, workshops, and fairs.

So much more than a garden

About the Garden

Oxford Botanic Garden combines world-class science, natural beauty, and 400 years of history in one space. From the world's largest water lilies to the smallest alpine flowers, the Garden is overflowing with plants you may not find anywhere else.

Sharing the scientific wonder and importance of plants with the world

Oxford Botanic Garden and Arboretum has a vibrant research portfolio focusing on evolutionary genetics, speciation and ex situ conservation. We work closely with the Department of Biology and partners further afield to produce world class research. Our Public Engagement Programme is also intrinsically linked to the research we do.
